WITHOUT in any way endorsing the exaggerated statements which have from time to time been made with reference to the doings of the Catholic Missionaries in China, it is almost impossible to deny that the Chinese have some grounds for the antagonism which | stated that Mr. Collago could if he chose write they feel towards them. We do not for a moment ignore the mobleness of the cause which induces the Missionaries to abandon their homes for the sake of performing what the matter goes. If only a short time is taken appears to them their vocation of converting the beathen in distant lands; nor do we wish to raise any distinction on the score of doctrine between the Catholic and the Protestant Missionary, as if they differ widely they are both the preschers of Obristianity. But the point at which a marked difference arises is the political and social policy of the churches to which the two classes of Missionarios respectively belong. The Protestant is not attached to a Church which asserts political power at home; while the Catholic Church has always had a tendency to exert an influence upon political affairs, at least to the extent of establishing itself as an independent power so far as all ecclesiastical matters are concerned, in the countries which it has converted to its faith. When we know that this question has assumed serious dimensions in strong countries in Europe, it is not surprising that it should do so in China, where the Government is of a very weak character. and has often difficulty in holding its own with its own subjects and maintaining order in the various parts of the Empire. When in addition to this, the peculiar position of foreigners in the country in consequence of the exterritoriality jurisdiction bas to be dealt with, it is not astonishing that the Chinese should see some cause for anxiety in the spread of Catholic Missionary Stations over the country It is fair to admit that for the most part the Missionaries act with circumspection, and do not stretch the peculiar influence which they possess to any great lengths. At times however, some among them allow then sympathies to be too much enlisted on the side of converts, and are induced to use their influence with the mandarine in favour of men who little deserve it, and who have made their connection with Missions a cloak for the evasion of the laws of their country. With the plain fact before them that the Catholic Church has evoked opposition in European countries on political grounds, the Government, with outling down young trees ou it really had no effect inchecking production, Chinese may well fear the growth of that power in their own country, and may be naturally approbensive that it will in time become an influence with which they will be numble to cope. The Chinese are not in any strong degree opposed to Missionaries upon religious grounds; but they have fears upon political grounds; and it is for this reason that there is a much stronger feeling manifested against the Catholics than the Protestants. The latter do not ordinarily act in a way which will give any just grounds for believing that they desire to obtain political influence, and are looked upon more favourably. But from a Chinaman's point of view. Missionaries of all denominations are inexplicable, and if they show too great scal are Gardner's boarding-house, was charged with blame to them for that, Why should the Malay very apt to be suspected of having ulterior Naid Sanshem and with a knife inflicting a a lavish hand? partment, put in an application yesterday for payment for services rendered as interpreter the Court, but Mr. Russell refused to grap the application, bolding that be ought, being a Government servant, to be willing to perform such services when called upon, without extra remuneration. Mr. Collago urged with some plansibility that the time thus taken up made t necessary to devote extra hours to his regular work of making up the police accounts, and stated that he was paid for extra time when he interpreted in the charge-room. The Magis trate, however, adhered to his decision, but to him officially on the subject, though he might jeopardize his present position if he did not deem it wise to be generally useful. There is certainly some reason on both sides, and the nestion is really one of the extent to which up, it would be unreasonable for a porson Government employ to look for payment, but fon the other hand interpreting of the kind makes a material inroad upon the time of an employs, who is engaged to perform other daties, it would be equally unreasonable for the fair rale would probably be to allow payment if a certain time, say on hour, be exceeded.

THE CHEMEH AFFAIR: (N. C. Daily Nout.)

The Rev. H. Corbett writes from Chemen in the 22nd June :- After the settlement of the difficulty arising out of the anti-foreign riot in the district of Chemeh, all parties returned to their homes. The rioters at pure attempted to extort money from those who had been witnesses in the trial, and from the pative Christians, threatening that if they did not give it, they would prosecute them before the Magistrate for money which they alleged was due to them on old accounts. This system of taxation extends down to the smallest article. We are informed that even the straw sandals worn by the coolies in in the streets have to bear their quota, and the result is as might be anticipated, that the general prosperity of the Settlement is interfered with that foreigners have to pay often make, best quality. double for the ordinary necessaries of life, and SOLAR PITH HATS and HELMETS, that to both natives and foreigners the price of living at Shanghai has become to excessive, that on the slightest stagnation of trade expenses bogin to out very beavily into capital, and rookless trading becomes a matter almost of necessity. We have lately been wondering BAGS, necessaries on a voyage. at the inelasticity of Municipal finance. There seems little reason to doubt that it is mainly owing to these irregular levics. In fact, beford residents are called to contribute to the needs of PERFUMERY, TOOTH- POWDERS, IN and after this date the above Association the Settlement, they have directly or indirectly OILS, POMADES, and other REQUISITES been squeezed dry by the agents of the various for the Toilet. tax offices. On these grounds, we have more than once objected to the commutation by the Taotai for Chinese wharfage does; and still inore against looking for contributions towards Municipal works. The Council has in fact placed itself in a wrong position with regard to both these matters, and we can see the result in the elaborate system of taxation which has sprung up. Far better, in our epinion, would it be, that a regular tariff of dues leviable within the Settlements he drawn up by the Chinese authorities and sane. tioned by the representatives of foreign interests, and that the collection of those dues be undertaken by the Manioipal Council. A system of taxation which would not boar thequally, QUILTS. and which would not have the effect of escouraging irregular monopolies, could easily be devised. At all events, our Municipal Conneils, of late years seem to have been curiously inattentive to what his been going on around them, or we are convinced the cate of affairs within the Defence Creek would have been in better organised condition than at present For Sale.
